

COOPER'S EXIT IS NOT THE KEY

Retirement Of Congressman From Senatorial Race Seems Not As Yet To Have Materially Affected Anyone's Chances

AS SHOWN BY TODAY'S JOINT VOTE

Senate Lays Over The Bill Providing For A Commission System Of City Government--Resolution For Codification Of Laws Introduced.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., May 9.—Congressman H. A. Cooper's formal retirement from the senatorial race last evening, following as it did, so closely on the heels of Lenroot's withdrawal, did not result in the marked gain expected in some of the regular camps. Nor was the situation materially changed, so far as the hopes of those who have been avowed candidates from the beginning were concerned, by the joint ballot this noon. There was a sudden growth in the strength of Assemblyman McGregor of Platteville who received ten votes that went to Senator Hudson last night, but this is of significance only in so far as it shows that Hudson was not the permanent choice. The ballot was as follows: Stephenson 28 (the same number as he had last evening; Hatfield, 22; Esch 21; Bird, democrat, 18; McGregor 10; Sanborn 6; Rummel, social democrat 5; Estabrook 4; Martin 3; Frear 3; Baensch 1; Stondall 1; Stout 1; Carroll G. Pearce 1; Hazelwood, democrat, 1; Thompson, social democrat, 1.

The senate debated and laid over bills for the commission system of city government instead of a common council of aldermen, and to pay members of legislative investigation committees on life insurance, and the university, for their services, some $10,000. By a tie vote of 44 to 44, the assembly refused to reconsider its vote on the Douglas resolution calling for an investigation into finances of state last administration Gov. Peck. Douglas made a speech which won some votes.

The social democrat, Brockhausen, introduced a joint resolution providing for the codification of the laws relating to cities of the first and second class, so as to give them more "home rule."

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, May 9.—The White Star steamship "Baltic" which ran her nose into a mudbank in Swash channel an hour after she left her pier yesterday for Liverpool, is still aground this morning. The sea is smooth and there is no danger for the large number of passengers aboard the vessel.

The "Baltic" passed Sunday Hook, outbound at 4:50 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The big steamer sailed drawing only 31 feet of water, the cargo being light by reason of the long-shoremen's strike. As it passed Sandy Hook it answered special signals by blasts of its whistle and then plunged into a thick fog. Its whistle was heard again some time later, and a tug was sent to investigate.

Mrs. B. P. Jones of Denver, a sister of Miss E. Lynch, who resides on South Main street, Janesville, is one of the passengers. Andrew Carnegie, his wife and daughter, Henry H. Rogers of the Standard Oil Co., the countess of Yarnmouth who is returning to England after attending the trial of her brother, Harry Thaw, for murder. Mary Klaw, the theatrical manager, Mose Gumble, the song writer, and other notables are aboard.

WISCONSIN LEAGUE PLAYS FIRST GAMES

Eight Teams in Association and 126
Games Will be Played--Season to End September 22.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Milwaukee, Wis., May 9.—With brighter prospects than ever before in its history the Wisconsin state baseball league enters upon the season of 1907 today. The circuit this year could hardly be improved upon, comprising as it does eight good ball towns. The opening games, weather permitting, will be played as follows: Green Bay at Freeport, Oshkosh at Madison, Wausau at Eau Claire and Fond du Lac at La Crosse. The schedule provides for 126 games, the season to close Sept. 22.

New York State League.
Utica, N. Y., May 9.—The New York state league begins the season today under conditions perhaps more favorable than ever before since the league was organized. The opening games according to schedule are to be played as follows: Scranton, holder of the pennant, at Troy; Wilkes-Barre at Albany, Syracuse at A. J. G., and Binghamton at Utica.

SENATOR CULBERSON FOR MINORITY HEAD

Claims to Have Enough Pledges for Election to Leader of Democracy in Upper House.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, D. C., May 9.—It now begins to look very much as though Senator Charles A. Culberson has the best chance of being chosen minority leader in the Senate next December. According to report Senator Culberson now claims he has enough pledges from democratic associates to secure his election. Senator Culberson is now serving his second term in the upper branch of the national legislature and there are few members of that body of wider political experience. He has been in public life continuously since 1890, in which year he was elected attorney-general of Texas. Subsequently he served four years as governor of his state and he has been in the senate since 1899. At the two last democratic national conventions he served as chairman of the Texas delegation. He comes by his inclination for politics naturally, as his father was a member of Congress from Texas for twenty-two years. With Congress in a long session just prior to the presidential campaign, Senator Culberson, as minority leader, would have unusual opportunity for focusing the attention of the country upon his party.

LOST CONTROL OF CAR; WAS KILLED

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Lexington, Ky., May 9.—William Wells, a motorman, was killed and ten others were injured, one probably fatally, in a collision this morning between a street car and a Chesapeake & Ohio passenger train, from Louisville. ## ALL BUT THIRTEEN OF THE POITOU'S PASSENGERS SAFE

Earlier Reports of Large Loss by the Wreck of French Steamer "Poitou" Contradicted.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Montevideo, Uruguay, May 9.—An official report from government authorities on the spot, says that all the passengers, mostly Spanish emigrants, of the French transport maritime steamer "Poitou" bound from Marseilles for Buenos Ayres and wrecked off the coast of Uruguay, have been rescued with the exception of thirteen. The first reports sent out gave the estimated loss as 109.

LARGE SUGAR CANE CROP IS ASSURED

340,000 Tons of Refined Product Expected Against 225,000 Placed on Market Last Year.

New Orleans, La., May 9.—According to the estimate of a number of extensive cane growers in the sugar belt Louisiana should make this year 340,000 tons of sugar or more. The average crop of the state is 250,000 tons. Last year only 225,000 tons were made. It is not believed that the short crop in Cuba will have any effect on the price of the Louisiana product, for the best crop is as large as usual.

THE METROPOLITAN HANDICAP ON TODAY

"Accountant" Has Top Weight and
"the Picket" Follows Ten Pounds Lighter.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, May 9.—The magnificent race track at Belmont Park never looked better than it did this morning on the opening of the spring meeting of the Westchester Racing Association. Everything pointed to a good day for the rich 3-year-old stake, the Metropolitan Handicap. All of the horses engaged in the race, and there are more than a score of them, were out for exercise in the early morning hours and were watched by a big throng trying to get a line on the possible winner of the big race. By 10 o'clock all the candidates had their gallops and were in their comfortable box stalls to await the event that should make their owner richer by more than $10,000. The field that will face the starter in the big race is an excellent one. Accountant is best thought of by the handicapper, who has allotted him 126 pounds, which is top weight. The Picket is ten pounds better off, and Water Tight has still one pound less to carry. Nymph, Brookdale, Grapple, Pulsus, Kuroki and Zambesi are among the entrants.

Glorifier Wins.
New York, May 9.—(3 p. m.)—Glorifier wins the metropolitan handicap, worth $15,000.

ANNUAL SESSION OF MOTHERS' CONGRESS

Will be Held in Los Angeles—Cooperation of Parents and Teachers to Be Discussed.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Los Angeles, Cal., May 9.—The advance guard of delegates has arrived for the annual conference of the National Congress of Mothers, which is to begin a five days' session in this city tomorrow. It will be the tenth anniversary of the Congress, which held its first meeting in Washington in 1897. The program for the Los Angeles meeting is one of the best ever arranged by the organization. The speakers will be leaders in the different phases of work for childhood. The education and discipline of children in the home will be considered. The cooperation of parents and teachers through parents' associations in the schools, and the steadily increasing cooperation between educational associations and the congress, will form an important part of the program. The care of the dependent, neglected and delinquent children in every community will be the subject of several sessions and eminent specialists will discuss it. Legislation required in state and nation for the protection of home and childhood will receive consideration. The conference will be the guests of the California Congress of Mothers, which body has made elaborate provision for the reception and entertainment of the visitors.

Tragedy at Fort Caswell, N. C.
Southport, N. C., May 9.—At the United States army post at Fort Caswell, Wednesday, Private Henry Hamilton, of the Nineteenth company, coast artillery, shot his wife three times, seriously wounding her. ## HAYWOOD WAS PLACED ON TRIAL FOR MURDER TODAY

At Boise, Idaho--Selecting Of The Jury Is Expected To Consume Three Weeks.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Boise, Idaho, May 9.—William D. Haywood, secretary-treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners, was today placed on trial for conspiracy in the murder at Caldwell on Dec. 30, 1905, of Former Governor Frank Steunenberg. The selecting of the jury, it is expected, will require at least three weeks.

By overruling yesterday the motion of the defense for a bill of particulars setting forth what overt acts, if any, there were to connect the accused with the murder, Judge Fremont Wood of the circuit court of Ada county cleared the way for the trial.

Judge Wood held that the request of Haywood's counsel for a more explicit statement of the charges against the prisoners came too late, regardless of whether or not it might have been entertained at an earlier stage of the proceedings.

The prisoner, his counsel and the attorneys specially retained to present the case and plead the cause of the accusing state are ready for the long ordeal in court. The first and one of the great tasks of the court is to secure a jury, and that will be commenced as soon as Sheriff Hodgins has intoned the formal cry opening the court. Estimates of the time necessary to select 12 men good and true vary, but none of them places the time under three weeks. The victim of the Caldwell assassination, long a conspicuous figure in the political life of the state, was possibly known to hundreds of citizens of Ada county, and personal alignment and partisanship on the labor question, in which the prisoner and his codefendants were for a long time active leaders, is quite general, so that it is at once a difficult and delicate task to find men free from the disqualifications that unfit them for the high duty of a juror.

Many men who know the community very well and who add to their calculation the further handicap of apprehension of future violence for revenge, take the extreme view that it will be impossible to secure a jury, but the weight of opinion is against this conclusion.

The defense sprung a decided surprise Wednesday night by announcing the retention of Edgar L. Wilson, of Boise, as assistant counsel. Mr. Wilson is a former law partner of Judge Fremont Wood, who is to preside at the trials. He served two terms in congress and is well known throughout the west as an able lawyer.

ROOSEVELT AT UNVEILING OF MONUMENT TO LAWTON

Delivered Principal Address--Was Guest Of Vice-President Fairbanks At Luncheon Today.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Indianapolis, Ind., May 9.—So far as the local arrangements are concerned, everything is in readiness for the reception of President Roosevelt, who is to come to Indianapolis to deliver the oration at the unveiling of the Lawton monument on Memorial Day. The president will arrive in Indianapolis during the forenoon of the 30th and will be escorted by the reception committee to the home of Vice President Fairbanks, where luncheon is to be served.

The dedicatory exercises will take place in the afternoon and will be preceded by a military parade. One battalion of infantry from Fort Wayne, Mich., one battalion from Ft. Thomas, Ky., and one light battery from Ft. Sheridan, Ill., together with several regiments of the Indiana National Guard, will take part in the parade.

The dedicatory ceremonies will take place in the grounds of the court house, where the monument has been erected. It is expected that Mrs. Lawton, the widow of the soldier, will be present at the unveiling. Governor Hanly, as chairman of the Lawton committee, will preside over the exercises and will introduce the President. There will be one or two brief introductory addresses, but the speech of the occasion will be that of the President, who has indicated that it will be along the line of a Memorial Day address. Immediately after the dedicatory exercises the president's party will leave for Lansing, where the President is to speak the following day.

BURNS DECLARES HE HAD PROMISED TO LAY DOWN FOR THE PHILADELPHIA MAN

But Decided to Go In and Win, Once
the Gong Had Sounded—Claims
That Was the Only Way to Get
O'Brien Into the Ring—
Manager of Club
Backs State-

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Los Angeles, Cal., May 9.—In a statement issued today, Tommy Burns of Detroit who was given the decision over Philadelphia's Jack O'Brien after a most unsatisfactory battle of 20 rounds last evening, declared that he promised to lay down and let O'Brien win the fight. Otherwise, he claims there would have been no chance of getting O'Brien in the ring. He said he had resolved as soon as the gong sounded for the first round to break his promise, and determined to go in and win. Burns further states that he was instrumental in having the bets called off, not wishing to have the public tricked into losing its money. Manager McCarey of the Pacific Athletic club, today, confirmed Burns' statement in every detail.

NO NINE LIVES FOR THE "DRUG TRUST"

Indiana Combination Perpetually Enjoined From Restraining Trade and Blacklisting.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Indianapolis, Ind., May 9.—The so-called "drug trust" was perpetually enjoined today from continuing its operations, by the entering of a decree in the United States circuit court for the district of Indiana. The defendants, ninety-two in number, are enjoined from combining or conspiring for the restraint of trade in drugs, fixing prices, by agreement, blacklisting retailers who cut price or refusing to sell to any retailer on equal terms. All publication of blacklists is forbidden and all contracts or agreements covered by charges are declared void. With the entering of the decree the litigation came to an end with a complete victory for the government.

Life and Love.
Life is a crust of bread that lore transforms into a banquet.

Perhaps this story of the appropriation of millions for new engines of war would not look well or harmonize with an account of the latest discussions of the International Peace Tribunal, but nevertheless it makes interesting reading matter, for it is a fact that the last congress voted $3,000,000 for the purchase of submarine boats, and it is also a fact that in spite of the many adverse criticisms on this freak of the navy, this nation, as well as other world powers, are steadily developing this under-the-sea terror, and are gradually collecting quite a fleet of them.

It seems no longer to be a question as to whether submarines shall be built, but rather which of the several types of boats which have been produced is the best and the most worthy to be used as a pattern to follow in building those which will be purchased with the three million dollars of the people's money. Submarines have undoubtedly obtained a big and definite place in the general scheme of defence in the United States. They are recognized as an important factor in naval warfare, so that a new type of boat called the Octopus, built by the Electric Boat company, possesses a peculiar interest. For the Octopus is regarded by many experts as the highest type yet attained in this style of naval weapon. They call her the last word among the deadly submerged craft, which are built to steal upon and destroy the battleship of the enemy.

There are scores of reasons, says its inventor, for calling the Octopus the greatest of all submarine craft. She is the biggest, to begin with. With a length of 105 feet, she makes the early type of submarine look like a toy. In spite of her greatly superior bulk she is more easily handled and guided than the smaller craft.

Her size and capacity are considered as confidential by the navy department, the only figures given out so far being that her length is 105 feet and displacement about 300 tons. Unofficial timing when running over the trial course shows her to have a speed of about 12 knots on the surface and nine knots submerged.

What would be the part such a vessel would play in a naval war? She could sink beneath the surface of the sea, and completely out of sight of any possible enemy, travel any desired distance, rise to the surface so that only the top of the periscope would be showing, and launch a torpedo at an opposing battleship. Then down she could go again. And if the torpedo struck home, down the battleship would go, also, never to rise again.

These torpedoes give the ordinary individual an uncanny feeling, even to think of them. At a speed of 33 knots an hour, six feet below the surface of the water, so as to strike a warship below the armor belt, a torpedo hums along, leaving a trail of foam, 18 feet eight inches of menacing power driving straight from the goal. In the war head of the torpedo are from 250 to 350 pounds of gun cotton, enough to sink the strongest vessel afloat, or to blow up a town, and at the extreme tip of the rushing monster is a war nose, an extremely sensitive "cap" that causes the torpedo to explode when it strikes an object. A submarine can stand off a distance of three-quarters of a mile from a warship and launch a torpedo that will reach its destination.

It's not a beautiful thing to think of, death and destruction stealing from the sea below the surface upon a huge vessel of war filled with human beings. It makes all precautions seem vain and useless, and the usual elements of warfare are discounted. But then Marquis of Queensbury rules do not apply in actual war, and there is nothing to prevent hitting below the belt—especially below the armor belt. If the Octopus made a hit with each of her torpedoes, her part in a naval engagement would be the utter destruction of four battleships, not a bad achievement for a boat which is only 105 feet in length, and which, even upon the surface, can hardly be seen at all. Only four feet of the Octopus shows above the surface when she is lying exposed to view.

She has a small conning tower, and a periscope that rises like a flagpole above the water when the Octopus is moving submerged at her usual depth. This periscope enables the crew of the submarine to see what is upon the surface of the sea, even while they are 15 or 20 feet below, and also enables the pilot to get direction on objects, just as the compass will guide him for general direction. It is composed of a set of prisms which can be made to revolve by pressing an electric button. By reflection, the instrument shows objects on the surface of the sea and in actual size on the contrivance at the base of the periscope in the body of the submarine.

In the early submarines it was necessary for the captain to bring his vessel to the surface, exposing his conning tower, whenever he wished to make an observation, but with the advent of the periscope he navigates his vessel completely submerged, occasionally rising so that the tube emerges but a few feet above the water, enabling him to observe the desired objects and then submerging again. Even when running with the periscope exposed above the surface it is very difficult to locate it from another ship, as its size and appearance are such as to deceive the observer.

That is where the submarine has an enormous advantage over the warship that must remain on the surface. No projectile will penetrate more than two feet below the surface, so that so soon as a submarine is submerged she cannot be hit, even when the top of her conning tower is showing, for the conning tower itself is six feet high on the Octopus.

About the only thing that a warship can do, in fact, when attacked by a submarine, is to turn tail and run. Every modern warship possesses greater speed than the submarine, so that should the larger vessel observe the approach in time, she could keep out of reach, for the submarine must get within a distance of three-quarters of a mile or half a mile before she can launch her torpedo. But then, the submarine can sink, travel for miles below the surface and thus get close to her quarry without being seen.

Under cover of night this method of attack is particularly easy. The huge bulk of the warship makes a glaring target, and no net was ever invented that would withstand a torpedo attack. The torpedo net has been abolished in all the most modern warships as practically useless.

The Warmth of a Snow House.
Usually, our snow igloos allowed each man from 18 to 20 inches space in which to lie down, and just room enough to stretch his legs well. With our sleeping bags they were entirely comfortable no matter what the weather outside. The snow is porous enough to admit of air circulation, but even a gale of wind without would not affect the temperature within. It is claimed by the natives that when the wind blows, a snow house is warmer than in a period of still cold. I could see no difference. A new snow igloo is, however, more comfortable than one that has been used, for newly-cut snow blocks are more porous. In one that has been used there is always a crust of ice on the interior which prevents a proper circulation of air.—Dillon Wallace, in the Outing Magazine.

Descendant of Lady Washington.
If a nation no longer has people who saw Washington, there are at least lineal descendants of Lady Washington. One of them is Mrs. Britannia W. Kennon, who is Martha Washington's great granddaughter, and descendant of the last Lord Baltimore. She celebrated her ninety-second birthday lately at her home in Georgetown, D. C., where she was born and has spent her life.

RISE OF "JIM" M'CREA

HEAD OF PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD ONCE A RODMAN.

Golf and Driving Are His Favorite Sports—Is Devoted to His Home Although Holding Membership in Many Clubs.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Another proof that this is a democratic country and that the highest offices are open to the humblest if they have the ability to rise to their opportunities, has just been furnished by the greatest railroad in the world which is going to try the experiment of what kind of a president a rodman will make.

It is not so long ago, within the memory of many officials of the Pennsylvania railroad, that James McCrea, who has just succeeded to the mantle of A. J. Cassatt, was only plain "Jim" McCrea, and figured on the salary list of the road as a rodman.

He was a good rodman, a hard worker. He has been the same in every other position he has held in the 41 years he has served the road.

The character of result achieved by the tall, muscular, silent, gruff-spoken "Jim" made him a marked man before he had been a rodman for two years. Then came promotions, and four presidents of the road took a pleasure in aiding his ambitions. He went up, up through the stages of engineer, superintendent of various divisions, general manager of various roads, fourth vice president, third vice president, second vice president and first vice president.

His election to the headship of the entire concern was no surprise, for it had been known for a long time that he was President Cassatt's preference, and for a couple of years prior to his death Mr. Cassatt had been grooming McCrea for the place.

There is no particular romance in the life-story of this man, big mentally and physically. His success has not proceeded from strokes of daring or from sudden inspirations. Hard, relentless work has been the only system he knew.

Even those Pittsburg friends who have known him as a neighbor for many years, and who love to speak of him as a man with a heart as big as his frame, who loves his fellow man as himself, who is everybody's friend and who lacks the luxury of a single enemy, never have been quite able to fully grasp his character. Though he is one of the biggest of many big men who have lately come out of the Smoky City, he is little known to the city at large.

His life divided itself between work and his home. This is in itself not such an unusual circumstance; there are all too many who from reticence shun society or who have not the arts or inclination to enjoy it, even after business has removed all need of hard work.

JAMES M'CREA.

(He Has Risen from Rodman to Presidency of Pennsylvania Railroad.)

This was the riddle about McCrea. He shunned social functions, yet when drawn into them he shone as a star of first magnitude. His fine physique, quick wit and abounding good fellowship made him immensely popular, and had he wished Mr. McCrea could have attained almost any political or social distinction.

But McCrea knew only one love—the Pennsylvania railroad, and found more pleasure in serving it than in other forms of activity or diversion.

That is the sole reason why a few days ago directors elected him to the place made vacant by the death of Mr. Cassatt.

Mr. McCrea belonged to clubs in Pittsburg—the Duquesne, Pittsburg Golf club, Country club and Pittsburg Golf club. In New York he is a member of the Union League; in Chicago of the Chicago club, and in the Quaker City, where now he takes his residence, he is a member of the conservative and aristocratic old organization, the Philadelphia club.

As a sportsman the new president knows only two hobbies—horses and golf. He owns half a dozen thoroughbreds, and thinks nothing too good for them.

On the links of the Pittsburg Golf club Mr. McCrea, tall and powerfully built, his bushy and somewhat forbidding whiskers a target for the wind, was long a figure that will now be sadly missed.

The new head of the Pennsylvania was born in the home city of that organization, and is 58 years old.

Mr. McCrea is only moderately rich, most of his money being invested in the road. He is a firm opponent of railroad abuses, and graft in any form will be a dangerous experiment while he is in power.

SUGGESTIONS THAT ARE VERY PUNGENT

What Mail Order Houses are Doing Right in Your Own Locality.

How many buggies, carriages, wagons and sets of harness have the catalogue houses sold in your county during the past year? More than you like to think of, perhaps says The Student.

How did it happen that they sold so many?

Well, it didn't "just happen."

Not a bit of it. Every sale made to people who should have been your customers, was the result of persistent, consistent and insistent pushing.

Your friends and neighbors don't send their money away to the large city because they love the mail order concerns, or because they hate you.

The don't go to the trouble of sending for catalogues and sending away their money on uncertainties, simply to spite you.

Not at all.

If they buy by mail it is because the mail order man keeps hammering away at them: in every farm paper they pick up they see his announcements of wonderful, stupendous, gigantic, unparalleled and unequalled bargains! Almost every mail brings them a skillfully worded letter that attempts to persuade them that life surely will not be worth living they don't take advantage of the last chance to get a $200 buggy for $127! They are constantly told that the catalogue house can save them a whole lot of money—and the result of all this hammering is that they send away from home the money which ought to go to you.

Without criticising the energy or ability of the mail order man, we must confess that we believe the growth of the mail order business is largely the fault of the dealer.

The mail order man has built up his trade by being a better salesman, a larger advertiser, and a more energetic pusher, than the local dealer has been.

That's the plain truth of the case.

Like a more or less famous medicine, he has "worked while you have slept." His advertisements—which are his only salesmen—are on duty 24 hours in the day and 365 days in the year.

Now, you know perfectly well that you can take a man into your store today and if your stock is anything at all what it should be, you can give him a better bargain—better value for his money—than any mail order or catalogue house in existence.

You are sure of it.

But what good does it do for you to know that?

You've got to let the other fellows—the customers in your territory—know it, before the fact does you any good.

Nobody else is going to tell them about it.

You've got to do it yourself.

You must take a leaf from the successful man's methods, and not only let the people know the fact that you can give them good goods, and a genuine bargain, but you have to persuade them to the truth of the facts you give them, and keep reminding them of the facts, again and again.

The number of goods the other houses sell in your territory in the next twelve months depend almost entirely upon what you do to push your own goods.

You can accomplish anything by fighting the mail order man, but you can accomplish a whole lot by persistently, consistently and insistently keeping your own line before your customers.

It's up to you.

COX OUT FOR TAFT AS NEXT PRESIDENT

FORMER OHIO LEADER URGES HARMONY IN PARTY.

FORAKER FOR THE SENATE

His Choice for Governor Is A. L. Harris—Says His Political Differences with Secretary Are Buried.

Cincinnati, May 9.—Party harmony, victory in the municipal elections this fall and next year, W. H. Taft for president, J. R. Foraker for United States senator and A. L. Harris for governor, is the program advised by George B. Cox, former Republican leader in Hamilton county, in an interview Wednesday afternoon.

Reports from Columbus and Washington had named Mr. Cox as engaged in the conduct of negotiations looking toward a compromise between the Taft and Foraker forces, but Mr. Cox entered an emphatic and sweeping denial to such suggestions.

"So far as I am concerned," he said, "there is absolutely nothing to this talk. I know of no such deal and would not take part in any such negotiations. I have retired from active participation in politics. Of course, I cannot absolutely refuse to advise with friends."

Taft for President.

"We must not forget that we must carry the legislature next year to elect a United States senator and get much needed legislation, and must elect a governor and other state officers. The way to do all this, I believe, is for the Republicans to put their shoulders to the wheel in their several neighborhoods and see to it that none but true Republicans represent them. Our watch word should be 'success of the Republican party,' and to achieve this we should support W. H. Taft for president, J. R. Foraker for United States senator and A. L. Harris for governor."

"What about your personal differences with Secretary Taft?"

"I know of no personal differences. There may have been some political differences, but they are things of the past and will not be permitted to stand in the way of party success. I would respect, Republicans, let your watchword be harmony and party success. My friends, I trust, will be for Taft for president, Foraker for senator and Harris for governor."

What Foraker Says.

"When the attention of Senator Foraker was called to the statement, he said:

"I have just read what Mr. Cox says. If I understand him correctly, he makes a specific recommendation addressed to the Republicans of Ohio, as to what their action shall be in the convention of next year. I am not sure it calls for any response from me, but inasmuch as you seem to think it does, I will repeat that I don't want any political honors at the hands of the Republicans of Ohio except with their hearty endorsement. Therefore, if what Mr. Cox suggests and recommends should meet with their approval, no one will support Secretary Taft more cordially than I shall."

Charles P. Taft, editor of the Cincinnati Times-Star and brother of Secretary Taft, when shown the interview with Mr. Cox, said:

"Mr. Cox takes a broad view of the matter. He sees the opportunity to elect another Ohio president and very wisely urges that we get together."

LION CLEARED THE YARD.

Pet of Minneapolis: Man was Death to the Dogs.

Mr. Nelson, who was much annoyed by stray dogs burying bones in his garden at Linden Hills, secured a lion while he was in Europe last summer, paying $287.50 for a rather weather beaten king of beasts, but one that was guaranteed in every respect. The lion became a great pet on the way over and came to know his master's voice and obey it. Its name was Henry. Arrived at Linden Hills Mr. Nelson let Henry out into the back yard and simply waited. At 7:30 on the first morning a Newfoundland dog as large as a small garage walked into the yard to step on the flower beds as usual and to tip over the garbage can. The lion saw the dog enter the yard and the dog just barely saw the lion.

"Crunch!" That was all. It was the sound made by Henry eating the dog. At 8:10 a monster bulldog smelled his way into the garden to rip up a yard of soil among the petunias. "Ki-yi!" "Crunch!" The bulldog had gone hence. By 11:30 Henry's score stood: One Newfoundland, one bull, four fox terriers, an Irish setter, and two plain dogs. Everything that came into the yard collided with the lion and he, it was not Mr. Nelson was so joyous over the experiment that he could not go to work that day, but just sat around and felt good. In six weeks the dogs were either all in or were avoiding the place by going two blocks the other way. Then the circus came around and the lion was so fat and glossy that Mr. Nelson disposed of him to the menagerie department for $327.75.—Minneapolis Journal.

WHAT THE BELL MEANT.

Musician's Novel Method of Signaling for Refreshments.

At the end of the ballroom floor in Riley's Tonopah saloon was a stage, upon which the orchestra sat. On one side were tiers of curtained boxes and along the other ran a raised gallery with drinking tables and chairs. A railing held the crowd back from the dancers, but there were no hurdles between the onlookers and the bar. In fact, from the way they gravitated thither I judged the floor to be on a slant. The place was thronged and very noisy. In the midst of a swinging two-step one of the musicians picked up a cow bell from between his feet and jangled it loudly.

"What does that mean?" I asked. "A fight?" "Oh, no," said a man at my side, "the orchestra wants a drink," and I saw a white-aproned attendant scudding toward the stage to take their orders. At regular intervals the wild clamor of this bovine neck charm broke out and it never failed to gain attention.—Rex Beach in Every-body's.

Keyhole Tenure in England.

The curious custom of keyhole tenure still prevails at Crowland, the famous abbey town in the Lincolnshire fens, where there are a number of cottages which are neither copyhold, freehold nor leasehold. They were originally built on waste land, and in each case the possessor of the key holds an undisputed tenancy. Although some of the occupiers have replaced the mud and thatched dwellings of antiquity with brick and slated buildings, they have no power to sell or will them away, for they have no deeds. On a tenant dying the first person to cross the threshold takes his place, if he so desires. Many devices have been resorted to to obtain the keys. The properties carry a county vote, but the poor law guardians always refuse to grant relief to the tenants.—London Globe.

Tomestone Refuge for Cat.

One day this week, when the snow was rapidly turning to slush, and when St. Paul's churchyard was bereft of its wonted groups of luncheon-hour strollers, one of the churchyard cats, an unusually solid and wild-looking specimen, was seen perched upon the narrow top of a weather-worn headstone. The space was uncomfortably narrow, and, to keep from falling, the animal was forced to clutch unceasingly. But the stone was dry, the churchyard walks were flooded, so the cat stayed, a soiled bit of white and black fur, suspicious but apparently resigned.—New York Post.

Plague of Caterpillars.

Travellers in the Wodonga and Barnawartha districts find it difficult to get their horses to face the caterpillars that swarm the country roads. They are denuding vegetation, and it is feared the vineyards will be devastated. An excursion train, when seven miles from Peshhurst, was brought to a standstill through dense masses of the insects blocking the rails. The wheels, crushing them to death, skidded from the rails.—London Daily Mail.

Weary of Abstractions.

"There is some satisfaction in knowing you are right, even if the world does not recognize it," remarked the idealist. "Not much," answered young Mrs. Torkins. "I can't help wishing Charley would bet on the horse that does win instead of the one that ought to."

A Sherlock Holmes.

"You are angry, madam." "How do you know? You have just come in." "I met your best friend leaving the house in a new and stunning costume."

Ruse Didn't Work.

A bailiff, having long tried in vain to arrest a Quaker, at last resolved to adopt the disguise of a Quaker himself, and so got access to the interior of the house. He knocked accordingly at the door. Inquiring if Friend Aminadab was at home and if he could see him. The housekeeper said, "Walk in, friend, and he shall see thee." The bailiff, delighted to have got this success, was directed to wait; but after waiting an hour he became impatient, rang the bell, and said to the servant, "Thou promised me I should see Friend Aminadab." "No, friend," answered she; "I promised he should see thee. He hath seen thee, but he doth not like thee."—Tit-Bits.

Before Breakfast.

Shall we walk before breakfast? Assuredly? Why this eternal yearning for breakfast? Forget it. Dr. Latson says: "We get to-day's strength (not stimulation) from yesterday's food, not from to-day's. I have walked many hundred miles without breakfast. In fact, all the walking I have done in the last four years has been without breakfast—for I never take any." George Sand used to walk in the daytime and write at night. Dickens used to say that a ten-mile stout afoot was the best preparation for his daily literary work. Daniel Webster and George Washington were great walkers.

Force of Habit.

"How was it Wiggins was foolish enough to write those letters read in the suit against him for breach of promise?" "I don't know, unless it was that being in a district attorney's office he got so in the habit that he even took to inditing love letters."

Psychological Doubts.

"I see that man in so many places that sometimes I think he is ubiquitous." "So do I, and it's puzzling me to decide whether he's leading a double life or if he's twins."

Continual Scheming.

They were calling on the garret bard. "And I suppose it is essential that you poets should have wonderful imaginations?" ventured the pretty girl. "Well, I should say so," replied the poet, as he lashed off another spring sonnet. "If we didn't have wonderful imaginations, we could never create the yarns we tell our creditors when they come around looking for money."

Peanuts in Spain.

The only province in Spain where peanuts are produced is Valencia. There are two different sorts, one containing two nuts—probably known in America as Spanish peanuts—and the other containing three or four nuts, known in England as "giants." The first class is by far the most common and cheapest.

Always an Inventor.

Sir William Crookes, who invented the theoscope and discovered thallium, is interested in the entire realm of invention. His interest in photography goes back 50 years. Scientific literature has been enriched by some eight hand books and manuals from his pen. He has edited in the last 20 years six different scientific journals.

Self-Conquering.

You are never conquered until you think you are. The moment you believe yourself to be conquered, you are conquered, even though success is within your grasp; all of which means that no person and no power can conquer a man; that he is only conquered when he conquers himself.—Freemont.

Paying for Others' Pleasure.

Francis Bird once found Dr. Howe with his feet swathed in flannels and extended upon a chair, and he said: "What is the matter, Howe?" "Gout." "Gout?" "What caused it?" "Whisky." "I thought you never drank any intoxicating liquors?" "I don't. But my ancestors did; and I have to foot the bill."

WISCONSIN WEATHER FORECAST

Generally fair, colder tonight, Friday, frost tonight.

THE TIMBER SUPPLY.

The Secretary of Agriculture, James Wilson, is sending out some interesting statistics regarding the timber supply in the United States and a note of warning because of the reckless waste.

Every person in the United States is using over six times as much wood as he would use if he were in Europe. The country as a whole consumes every year between three and four times more wood than all of the forests of the United States grow in the meantime.

The average acre of forest lays up a store of only 10 cubic feet annually, whereas it ought to be laying up at least 30 cubic feet in order to furnish the products taken out of it. Since 1880 more than 700,000,000,000 feet of timber have been cut for lumber alone, including 50,000,000,000 feet of coniferous timber in excess of the total stumpage estimate of the Census in 1880.

These are some of the remarkable statements made in Circular 97 of the Forest Service, which deals with the timber supply of the United States and reviews the stumpage estimates made by all the important authorities.

A study of the circular must lead directly to the conclusion that the rate at which forest products in the United States have been and are being consumed is far too lavish, and that only one result can follow unless steps are promptly taken to prevent waste in use and to increase the growth rate of every acre of forest in the United States. This result is a timber famine.

This country is today in the same position with regard to forest resources as was Germany 150 years ago. During this period of 150 years, such German States as Saxony and Russia, particularly the latter, have applied a policy of government control and regulation which has immensely increased the productivity of their forests.

The same policy will achieve even better results in the United States, because we have the advantage of all the lessons which Europe has learned and paid for in the course of a century of theory and practice.

It is estimated that the average tree, used for lumber, is 150 years old, and that if forests were planted to replace those destroyed, that more than a century would pass, before they would be available.

This generation is not looking so far ahead as that, in fact there seems to be a desire in some parts of the country to wantonly destroy this great reservoir which nature has so generously provided.

In the terpentine districts of the south, this destruction is most noticeable. Vast tracts of pine timbered are girdled and killed in less than 10 years and the land is worthless. Ask the terpentine men what the next generation will do for a living and they tell you that they are not interested so far ahead.

Forest fires, in this same section, are of daily occurrence, and as a result the protection so long furnished to orange orchards, is destroyed, and the frost line extends today to the extreme limit of the southern coast.

Every effort on the part of the government to protect the forestry, should be recognized and encouraged.

THE PARK IMPROVEMENTS.

The improvements now going on in the parks, are being watched with a good deal of interest, and while time will be required to develop the beauty which the plans contemplate, enough has already been done to warrant successful issue.

An effort will be made to have the county brick or concrete the ground at the back door entrance to the court house. This should have been done long ago.

The depression at the upper end of the grounds, where nature has provided a basin, may be transformer into a lagoon with rustic bridges and other ornamentation.

This can be done at slight expense, and will add materially to the beauty of the park. The shrubbery being planted is hardy and perpetual and will continue to develop for years to come.

The fourth and second ward parks are also to share in the improvements. The committee is fortunate in securing the aid of Dr. Dwight of the third ward, who is an intelligent enthusiast on this class of work.

When completed, every flower bed will be plainly labeled so that the people may be posted on names and made familiar with the kind of shrubs best adapted to ornamentation.

The United Steel Company has a plant at San Francisco, and three battle-ships were recently furnished with armor plate and other structural work, at a loss of two and one half million dollars. The company proposes to close this plant and advise other manufacturers to do the same, until the city is free from labor domination. A touch of hard times and enforced idleness is necessary to regulate this class of dictatorship.

The republican situation in Ohio is clearing up, and the state will be ready to support Taft for the presidency, and Foraker for the senate. This is as it should be. Taft is popular in the west and middle west, and with the endorsement of his own state, he enters the race at the head of the list. He is the most available man in the party to succeed Roosevelt, and thoroughly well equipped for the responsible office of chief magistrate.

The much advertised New York and Chicago Electric Air Line, which proposed to make the run of 750 miles between two cities, in 10 hours, is operating four miles of track near La Porte, Indiana, with a terminal station at the Federal court in Chicago. Stockholders of this visionary scheme are asking for an accounting, and the chances are that the four miles of track will not be extended in either direction.

When the government sets the pace for an eight hour day, it is to be expected that organized labor will demand the same concession. That's one trouble today in San Francisco. The government navy yard is running on an eight hour schedule, and men are fined who attempt to work overtime. A fine proposition for business to tackle.

Secretary Taft will discuss international trade relations, and not politics when he visits Milwaukee next month. With Lenroot and Cooper out of the race, there ought to be something doing. Now if Uncle Ike will redo the way, will be clear to elect a Senator.

The "recall bill" has been killed in the assembly. It was an impractical measure, providing that any man elected to office could be recalled to gratify any kind of whim.

The assessed valuation of real and personal property in New York city has increased, from $2,000,000,000 in 1901 to $2,300,000,000 in 1906, representing three fourths of all the assessed property in the state. During the same period the population increased 17 per cent. New York is said to be richest city on the globe.

Andrew Carnegie recently gave a Kansas College $20,000, with no strings attached by way of requiring that a duplicate sum be raised. The Mexico, Mo. Intelligencer says, "If Andy lives long enough, he may not only die poor, but charitable."

In spite of every precaution, the diamond mines of Africa are pillaged every year to the tune of $4,000,000. The contents of one workman's stomach recently yielded $3,700 under the influence of a stomach pump.

Boston recently landed 5,000 immigrants in a week. They had in their pockets an average capital of $7.00 each. That might do for New York, but it is a little light for good society at the "Hub."

If you keep your ear close to the ground and hear a rumble, don't be alarmed. The price of coal is adjusting itself for the summer opening.

The Candid Contractor

"Why did you charge $1,019.20 for a boot black stand worth $90?" a capitalist contractor was asked.

"Because I thought there would be a kick if I charged any more," he replied, pleasantly. "Anything else you're wanting to know today?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Our Friend, the Dollar

Jingle, Mister Money.

You're mighty kind an' true;

When I'm callin' you "My money,"

I mean it—so I do.

Other friends may leave you—

Like autumn leaves they fall,

But the dollar in the pocket—

It'll answer when you call.

It jingles an' it tangles

In the very time o' need,

It's the dollar, bright an' cheerful,

EVOLUTION OF GLASS EYES.

Were First Brought Into Use in the Seventeenth Century.

"That is an artificial eye of the seventeenth century," said the curator of the medical museum. "It isn't very deceptive, is it?" The ancient eye resembled what is called a patch. There was a band to encircle the head, and a semi-circle of leather with a human eye painted on it—a large, blue, staring eye. It was, in fact, simply a patch on which an eye was painted.

"Next came these silver shells," said the curator. "They were inserted under the lid in the empty socket. A little more deceptive, eh?" The shells, in shape like halves of walnuts, had eyes upon them, and were not unsightly. They were so dull and opaque, though, that no one would ever have taken them for the real thing. "Next came eyes of porcelain," the curator went on, waving his hand toward a case of fairly presentable porcelain eyes, "and finally we got glass eyes—transparent, brilliant eyes that will never be improved on till a movable pupil is invented, a pupil that, somehow, will work in harmony with the other pupil. Many an inventor is working on this movable pupil idea. Of course, there's a fortune in it for the successful man."

WATCH THE LARGE AFFAIRS.

Business Man Makes Mistake in Being Smothered in Detail.

When you're so buried in the detail of your business that you cannot get a clear, sharp view of your affairs in all their relations, you are in danger of failure. No great general ever takes a gun and goes with his soldiers into the thick of the fight, where he would be so stunned by the noises, and so blinded by the smoke of battle that he could not watch the movements of the enemy, could not see where his own troops, needed reinforcements, or how to hurl his forces on the weakest place in the enemy's ranks. He must go where he can watch every movement of the armies. If you are going to be a general in business, you must keep where you can get a clear view of your affairs and know what is going on everywhere. While you are buried in detail, your business may be in a dangerous position, from which you could extricate it if you knew the exact situation. Many a man fails in trying to be a general and a private at the same time.—Success.

Would Pension Mothers.

Pensions for mothers are advocated by a prominent society woman, who has seized upon the idea of an English writer. She argues especially in behalf of the wives of workmen—the kind of woman who, on a wage of sometimes less than eight dollars a week, has reared a large family. "Without the mother, where would the nation be?" she asks. "Yet what is the nation doing for the mothers of America? Surely these women above all others should be able to look forward to a period of rest after fighting the battle of life. With a state pension how much lighter would be the burdens of the workingman's wife! What an influence for good would she be in her old age to the rising generation, instead of being as at present a drag, on the energies of her offspring—young people who ought to be able to give all their time and devotion to their own families."

Milady's Bath.

It is said there is but one carbonic acid bath in New York, and it is in the home of a very rich widow. The apparatus as described is complicated and expensive. The acid is allowed to escape from stout metal cylinders, where it is stored under pressure, and mixed with the bath water. The effect upon the skin is highly stimulating. Such a bath leaves a feeling of great freshness. The widow was advised to visit Naubelm several years ago for a heart disorder, the waters at that celebrated German village being naturally effervescent and strongly carbonated. She dared not undertake the ocean voyage, and the artificial Naubelm was installed in her home.

Color Blindness Among Girls.

An intelligent physician has discovered that color blindness is very rare among girls, though it is common among boys. From this fact he draws the conclusion that in most cases color blindness is due to a want of early education in discriminating colors. Girls are taught to become familiar with every shade of colors, while boys receive no instruction whatever on the subject. Hence, boys frequently exhibit an ignorance with true color blindness, but which girls rarely show.

Just Described Her.

"Yes," said Lovett, "I was engaged to her once." "So I understand," remarked Newitt. "She told me she was an old flame of yours." "That's pretty near right. She certainly did burn up my money."

Naturally.

"Of course," said the tourist, "you know all the antidotes for snake bite?" "Sure," replied the mountaineer. "Well, when a snake bites you what's the first thing you do?" "Yell."

Not in His Line.

"Do you think Hamlet was mad?" inquired the critic. "Sir," answered Mr. Stormington Barnes, "I am an actor, not an alienist."

Good Breeding.

All good breeding includes respect, tact and gentleness.

The Autograph Market.

At the present time the greatest demand is for autographs of the English literary celebrities, some of which bring thousands of dollars. Keats and Shelley command such high prices that they sell best abroad, where there are more collections. In London, Berlin and Paris there are continual autograph sales during the season.—The Circle.

Killed by a Daisy.

A young woman named Boyd, of Parton, Cumberland, was picking flowers for a funeral wreath, when she slipped and the stalk of a Michaelmas daisy entered her wrist. A piece of the stalk remained in the wound for 21 days, set up lockjaw, and death ensued.—London (Eng.) Chronicle.

Life a Maze of Endless Complication.

From the cradle to the grave, in his needs as in his pleasures, in his conception of the world and of himself, the man of modern times struggles through a maze of endless complication. Nothing is simple any longer, neither thought nor action, not pleasure, not even dying.—Charles Wager.

Do Today's Work Well.

The fact of having done a day's work better than you ever did a day's work before will make you a better and a bigger man; and if you will try to live to-day hopefully, honestly, and well, and prepare for the future, as sure as you are alive you will succeed even beyond your dreams.

England's Big Canal.

A direct route from Manchester, England, to the Atlantic ocean was obtained by the digging of the Manchester canal. From Manchester ships now go through the artificial waterway to the Mersey river and from there to the open sea. This canal is fitted with hydraulic locks.

Proof of Power.

The man who is worthy of being a leader of men will never complain of the stupidity of his helpers, of the ingratitude of mankind nor of the inappreciation of the public. These things are all a part of the great game of life and to meet them and not go down before them in discouragement and defeat is the final proof of power.—Elbert Hubbard.

Japanese Women Divers.

The women divers of Shugashima have developed an ability to withstand the cold of the water, and are now the support of their families in their strange vocation. They dive to depths, as great as 60 feet, getting pearls and the haliotis or abalone, a shell-fish that is in great demand for food.

Dividing the Task.

The real division of labor, as a husband once put before me, is, "She says it and I do it."—The Bishop of Bristol.

SLUMBERED IN OPEN FIELD LAST NIGHT

Supposed Crazy Man Holding FORTH on Phil Carle Farm West of City.

With night's stormy blanket at his only covering and plowed ground at his couch an unknown man, supposed to be mentally unbalanced, slept through last night on the Phil Carle farm, two miles west of the city. Today he took possession of a shed on the same property and prepared to receive a large company of ladies whom he expected as his guests. He frightened the residents of the vicinity and at their request James Murphy, who resides on the old Search farm, reported the case to the local police authorities. At two o'clock this afternoon Undersheriff George Appleby and Officer John Brown departed for the scene of the stranger's fanciful revels to take the man into custody.

ASSORTING YARDS STREET-CAR LINE

No Extension Likely to Be Built Until Clough Option Expires Sept. 15.—Wages of Men Raised.

Through the efforts of Supt. William Murphy, the scale of hours and pay for the local street-car men have been materially improved by Edwin Blabon of Philadelphia, who represents the heirs and principal owners of the local property. Commencing with May 1, the motormen who have been receiving $35 a month will be paid at the rate of $1.00 a day, every day in the month to county, and will have four days off with full pay. The conductors who have been receiving $40 a month, will receive $1.50 a day and 4 days off under like conditions. The wages of the barn men and electricians have also been increased. With regard to the possible extension of the tracks to the South Janesville addition, Supt. Murphy said today: "It is not likely that anything in this direction will be done until Mr. Clough's option expires, which will be on Sept. 15. If a good sized suburb grows up there the car line will eventually, no doubt, go out to meet and serve the people."

Mr. Bicknell had refused to accept the stock, alleging that it had depreciated in value after the first negotiations in the deal. The loser has twenty days in which to settle or appeal the case and it is likely that the latter course will be followed. J. E. Fisher is Mr. Mansfield's legal representative and Wm. ## LOCAL POETESS IS PLACED ON RECORD

Chief Operator at Wisconsin Telephone Company Submits Poem in Contest.

For some time past the Wisconsin Telephone News, the official paper of the Wisconsin Telephone Company, have been conducting a contest on "How to succeed as a wire chief." Miss Ethel Smith, chief operator of the Janesville office, presented the following bit of verse in her paper, which is reprinted below:

"He who would win must work,—the prize Is for the faithful one who tries With loyal hand and heart,—who's skies With toil crowned hope are sunny And those who wish success to find This homely truth must bear in mind: The 'going to Dees' are not the kind That fill the hive with honey."

YOU CAN'T AFFORD TO MISS A SINGLE ITEM

Over $25,000 worth of the newest and most seasonable merchandise will be sold for less than $15,000. Why? Because the unseasonable weather has left manufacturers with heavy stocks and we have been able to secure choicest merchandise at an enormous sacrifice. It is a chance worth coming miles to take advantage of. There's something here for everyone and for every use—something that's new, up-to-date and thoroughly desirable—at the price which makes buying a positive economy. Take our advice and buy as much as you can; the more you buy now the more you'll save later on, for it may be years before you'll again have such a chance to buy so much for so little money.

..Forty Years Ago..

Janesville Daily Gazette, Thursday, May 9, 1867.—Mr. G. Hogan advertises tobacco stalks to prevent vermin from fruit and shade trees.

Outrageous.—A company of ill-mannered boys assembled in front of a residence in the Fourth ward, last night, and made night hideous by drumming on the pans. Their design was to disturb a family which had invited guests at their house. The whole party ought to have been arrested for this incipient rowdiness.

A Paradox.—It is not often that anybody has a chance to prove black is white and white is black, but we can do it and it is not far out of Janesville for the evidence. In one of the double houses in this city, there are living two families, and although one is African and the other Caucasian, there is no "war of the races" going on between them, but peace and harmony prevail. What is singular about it is that the black man's name should be White, and the white man's name should be Black, but such is the fact, so you see, Black is White and White is Black.

Grouting of Wells.—It seems to us that the patent of Mr. W. S. Follensbee for grouting wells must obtain general favor. The composition is a compound of water, lime and gravel, and becomes as solid as stone itself, making continuous walls impervious to water, through which no surface water can drain, and upon which no load of mud or moss can accumulate. More desirable by far than stone or brick curbing, it is also much cheaper. Mr. F. is not only putting in the grouting himself but selling the right.

Before The Footlights.

"Alt Heidelberg" the undisputed hit of the last years will be presented in its original German version by the Milwaukee German Theatre Co., at the Myers Theatre, Wednesday, May 15. The leading roles will be filled by Gertrude Senger as "Kathie," Curt Stark as "Prince Heinrich," through the scheming of her covetous ranch foreman, into a den, where she was in the power of the schemer, Alan Villain, as her lover, happened around and was himself bound and made helpless, but cleverly burning himself free from his thones by his lighted cigar, he set the house wild by escaping from the den with "Texas,"

This was only one of the many strong situations in which the play abounds the last act being exceptionally interesting, ending in the most realistic duel ever presented on the local stage.

CURT STARK AS 'THE PRINCE IN ALT HEIDELBERG'

Borth, Sprout as "Minister of State," Herm. Meltzer as "Vale," Heinrich Loewenfeld as "Kellermann" and Emil Marx as "Dr. Jaettner," tutor to the Prince.

"Alt Heidelberg" is one of those few plays, which re-pleasant in every respect, replete with humorous scenes and re-juvenating atmosphere.

Muskegon "Exchange"—Thurs. May 31, 1906.

"Texas Sweethearts" as played at the Strong last evening was a genuine success. The audience followed every action from the curtain's rise to its last fall with attentiveness, showing its appreciation by frequent and hearty applause. The play was one to delight the hearts of all, dealing with love and intrigue on a Texas ranch. Its plot led Pearl Lewis, as "Texas," the owner of the ranch, and the prospective marriage of "Texas" and her lover "Jack." Of course Alan Villain made a hit as usual by his easy, natural methods and was especially good in act second, where in plying from his sweetheart, after being accused of horse stealing and ordered to leave the ranch, he feelingly speaks of his dead mother. Very few eyes remained dry during this scene. Pearl Lewis made a very good and pretty sweetheart. Pleasing specialties were also introduced, and the scenery was good.

Coming for one night at the Myers Theatre, Friday, May 10.

BIG FIRE IN BARNESBORO, PA.

Business Section Destroyed and Black Hand Is Suspected.

Johnstown, Pa., May 6.—Fire Wednesday almost wiped out the business section of Barnesboro, in this county, entailing a loss approximating $90,000. Great excitement prevails and a detachment of the state constabulary was rushed to Barnesboro from Punxsutawney.

The fire is believed to have been of incendiary origin, following so closely the arrests of 100 foreigners on charges of being implicated in Black Hand operations, and the authorities will keep under surveillance all the members of the Italian colony until the exact cause of the fire can be ascertained.

Mysteries of Feminine Attire.

The toilet of woman never, even in its most obvious details, comes within the understanding of man. "He may admire, appreciate, or adore a woman's dress, but he never for a moment understands it. Superstition and Religion.

Superstition is related to this life, religion to the next; superstition is allied to fatality, religion to virtue; it is by the vivacity of earthly desires that we become superstitious; it is, on the contrary, by the sacrifice of these desires that we become religious.—Madame de Staël (1766-1817).

HOME ENDORSEMENT.

Hundreds of Janesville Citizens Can Tell You All About It.

Home endorsement, the public expression of Janesville people, should be evidence beyond dispute for every Janesville reader. Surely the experience of friends and neighbors, cheerfully given by them, will carry more weight than the utterances of strangers residing in far-away places. Read the following:

Mrs. B. F. Jones, of 157 Western Ave., Janesville, Wis., says:

"I was not free from attacks of backache for a single day during several years past, and used so many remedies without getting any relief that I came to the conclusion that nothing would help me and stopped trying. I went about all bent over, could not straighten up at all and had a dull pain across the loins and a feeling of weakness that made it hard for me even to rise from a chair. At night I would awaken, with the feeling that a great weight was breaking my back, and anyone who has suffered from kidney trouble will know what torture I endured. Finally I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and wondered if there was really any use of trying another remedy, but seeing them recommended by people in Janesville I got a box at the People's Drug Store and began using them. Gradually I regained strength and the pains and aches finally disappeared. Since I completed the treatment I have not had an attack of backache nor any symptom of kidney trouble, and I believe Doan's Kidney Pills worth every cent of the price that I can give them."

Duncombe recounted the evening's events. His new ally listened and afterward smoked for a moment or two in silence.

"It is simply wonderful," he declared. "The whole secret service system of Paris is working to cover up the traces of this boy and girl. Their spies of course are everywhere and their organization perfect. The first one of their creatures who tries to break away is Mlle. Flossie. The poor little fool lived for only a few hours afterward. Your bribe was high, but she ought to have known better."

"You mean?"

"Why, of course! The theft of her poor little jewels was only a blind. It was to deceive the public, for as a matter of fact her murderer would have been perfectly safe if he had strolled into the nearest police station and made his report. She was killed because she was going to give you certain information."

Duncombe shuddered.

"Great heaven!" he exclaimed. "Tell me, Spencer, who or what can be at the back of all this? Guy Poynton was simply a healthy minded, not over intelligent young Saxon, unambitious and passionately fond of his home and his country life. He had no friends over here, no interests, no ties of any sort. He was abroad for the first time of his life. He regarded foreign countries and people simply with the tolerant curiosity of the untraveled Britisher. He appears in Paris for one night and disappears, and forthwith all the genius of French espionage seems to have combined to cover up his traces. It is the same with his sister, only as she came afterward it was evidently on his account that she also is drawn into the mystery. What can be the meaning of it, Spencer?"

"My young friend," Spencer said, "I will be frank with you. I have not the least idea. I only know that somehow or other you're up against a big thing. In a week, perhaps a day, I may know more. Meanwhile I want you to go on your way precisely as though you and I had not discussed this matter."

"We may not work together, then?"

Duncombe asked.

"Certainly not. You are a marked man everywhere. Every door is closed to you. I shall nominally stick to my post. You must be content to be the actual lookout on, though you had better not abandon your inquiries altogether. I will put you up at the Cercle Anglais. It will serve to pass the time, and you may gain information at the most unlikely places. And now goodbye."

The liftman thrust a penciled note into his hand as he ascended to his room.

"From I do not know whom, monsieur," he announced. "It was left here by some one. Whom I cannot say."

Duncombe opened it in his dressing room. There was only one sentence:

"Monsieur would be well advised to leave Paris tonight."

CHAPTER XI.

"IN the most unlikely places," Duncombe murmured to himself as he bowed to the Frenchman whose name his friend had mentioned. "I am very glad to meet you again, M. le Baron," he said aloud.

They were in the covered garden at the Kitz. Duncombe had accepted the pressing invitation of an old college friend whom he had met on the boulevard to drop in and be introduced to his wife. And the third at the tea table was M. Louis, known in society apparently as M. le Baron de Suer.

Lady Hadley, his friend's wife, smiled languidly upon them both. She was a frail pink and white little woman, with the reputation of a beauty to sustain, wherein lay her life's work.

"You two know each other, of course."

Sleep And Rest

Every movement of the body consumes energy. So does mental effort. Energy is supplied by the nerves. It follows that physical or mental exhaustion simply means an over-draft on the nerves. Nature restores energy through rest and sleep. You cannot sleep with tired nerves. Dr. Miles' Nerve soother the irritation and restores nervous energy.

"Although I have lived nearly 78 years, I have stood up against testimonies for publication, but the unquenchable excellence of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve, as a medicine for inherent nervousness, intensified by long residence in high altitude country, has led me to recognize its superiority over every other medicine I have ever used for nervousness and sleeplessness. I feel sure that the Nervine is free from injurious opiates found in most medicines for insomnia, and can conscientiously recommend it to the aged and nervous."

she remarked. "Paris is no larger than London, after all."

"Sir George and I have met once at least," the baron said, smiling. "I am glad that he does me the honor of remembering the occasion."

Duncombe felt himself no match for his companion with the foils. He let the conversation drift and waited for his opportunity. Presently some more guests arrived, and Duncombe drew his host on one side.

"Hadley," he said, "how long have you known the baron?"

"Met him at Dorset House about two years ago, I think," Hadley answered. "He was doing a round of country houses. I'm not sure that he didn't stay at Sandringham. One of the real old French families, you know, the De Suers."

Duncombe nodded. There did not seem to be much that he could say. He mingled with the other guests and observed his social duties. But he watched the baron, and he took care that they left together.

"Are you going my way, baron?" he asked as they stepped into the Place Vendôme.

"I was going to the Cercle Anglais," the baron answered. "Do you belong?"

"I am up for a month's membership, but I am not elected yet," Duncombe answered.

"Then you shall come in as my guest," the baron declared.

"You are exceedingly kind," Duncombe answered. "I wonder whether I might presume still further upon your good nature and ask you a question."

"The asking," the baron murmured, "involves nothing."

"You bear, I am told, an honorable name, and you are well received in society. Why do you associate with murderers and thieves in that hell of a cafe where I saw you first?"

The baron smiled.

"My friend," he said, "I seek always the life amusing, and I find it there."

"It was robbed before your eyes, baron."

"I am so sorry," he said. "that I did not see it. That indeed would have been amusing."

"You know that the young lady who sat with us is dead?"

"A most bizarre happening," the baron assented, with a little sigh. "I cannot imagine how it occurred. The newspaper reports are not convincing. One would like to reconstruct the story. Poor little Flossie! She was most amusing, but just a little, a very little, too fond of darning her jewelry. One will miss her though."

"Referring for one moment to our meeting at the cafe. You told me a story there—you and your friend madame—of a young English lady, which the facts seem scarcely to sustain."

The baron sighed.

"My friend," he said, "we did the best we could at a moment's notice. I rather fancied the story myself. As to facts, what have they to do with it? I rather dattered myself that under the circumstances it was not bad."

"You admit now, then, that it was not the truth?"

"The truth! My dear Sir George! Supposing that the whereabouts of your charming young friend had been known to me, do you suppose that I should have permitted myself to have been bullied into disclosing it? Forgive me; if I speak plainly, but if you really wished for information which you supposed that I had your method of seeking it put you at once out of court. A French gentleman does not permit himself to be bullied."

Duncombe was silent for several moments. There were many things which he could have said, but where was the use?

"As a French gentleman, then," he said at last, "will you permit me to make a personal appeal to you? Miss Phyllis Poynton is a young lady in whom I am deeply interested. She was last seen at the Café Montmartre, from which place she disappeared. I am an Englishman of your own station. Tell me where I can find her or what has become of her?"

"My dear Sir George," the baron said, "you might have saved yourself a great deal of trouble if you had spoken like this to me at the first. Fearfully, then, I have not the least idea. Young English ladies come and go every evening at the Café Montmartre and such places. One remembers only those who happen to have amused one and not always those. Forgive me if I speak plainly. A young lady who had visited the Café Montmartre alone—well, you might look for her anywhere, but most assuredly in that case if your anxiety was to induce her to return to her friends you would be a little too late. Ah! We have arrived. Now, my friend, I must make you free of the place."

Duncombe was fuming with anger, but he had discretion enough to remain silent.

"Do you play bridge?" the baron asked as they entered the card room.

"Occasionally," Duncombe assented.

"I will go and see if I can find any men," the baron remarked. "I will leave my young friend De Bergillac to entertain you. The Vicomte de Bergillac—Sir George Duncombe."

Duncombe shook hands with a pale, weary looking youth, most immaculately dressed, but whose whole appearance was distinguished by marked symptoms of lassitude and ill health. They sat in easy chairs almost opposite to one another, and Duncombe found the other's scrutiny almost embarrassing.

"You speak French perhaps—yes?"

the young man asked at length:

"Yes, I speak French," Duncombe admitted.

"Then listen to me," the vicomte said slowly. "I speak as one man of honor to another. Do not play cards in this club."

"Not play cards? Why not?" Duncombe asked, amazed.

"You can take my advice or leave it," the vicomte answered calmly. "I have no explanation to offer you. If you choose to repeat my remark you would place me in an exceedingly awkward position. You see, I rely upon you as a man of honor."

"I am only too much obliged to you for the hint," Duncombe declared. "But this club—the Cercle Anglais—"

"The club is all right," the vicomte admitted calmly. "Unfortunately there is no place in Paris which would be entirely safe for you. You have the misfortune, you see, to be in opposition to some of my friends—who have really unlimited opportunities for making things disagreeable for you. Now I am beginning to talk, and it is very foolish of me. Why don't you leave Paris, Sir George?"

"Why should I?" Duncombe asked a little sharply. "I break no laws here. I wrong no one. I am here on my own business, and I only ask to be let alone."

Defined Status of Water.

At one time the ballot in charge of an English jury was sworn to keep them "without meat, drink, or fire." Justice Maule once gave the classic reply to the bailiff who inquired whether he might grant a jurymen's request for a glass of water: "Well, it is not meat, and I should not call it drink. Yes, you may."

Can Women Be Friends?

Can women be friends? Sacrifices for the sake of love of man and offspring are recorded without number, but female Davids and Damons are not readily discovered in either history or legend. Professors of platonic affection continue to evoke jeers of incredulity, and the traditional disingenuousness of "dearest friends" still plays well its part in caricature. The changeableness of woman's nature, has become axiomatic. Can it be that, throughout the ages, even to these enlightened days, it has retained consistency in this respect alone? It surfaces for us to raise the question; to others of more certain mind we relinquish the hazardous privilege of adducing evidence and passing judgment.—Harper's Bazar.

ONE LIFE LOST AND MANY HURT IN FIRE

UNIVERSITY BUILDING DESTROYED IN KANSAS CITY.

SIX PERSONS MISSING

Scores of Women and Artists Trapped in Unsafe Structure—Property Loss Is About $250,000.

Kansas City, Mo., May 9.—Fire Wednesday afternoon destroyed the five-story University building at the northwest corner of Locust and Ninth streets, causing a property loss estimated at a quarter of a million dollars. One life was lost, six persons are missing and may be buried in the ruins, and 15 persons were more or less seriously injured.

The building was occupied by Montgomery Ward & Co. as offices, and by numerous artists and musicians, who lost everything.

The known dead: George De Mare, aged 32, an art instructor.

Among the missing is Miss Maud Wittelborn, piano teacher; last seen at the window of her studio on the fifth floor.

Miss Alexandra Blumberg, a Russian countess, sustained a fractured skull and may die.

Was Built for Y. M. C. A.

The University building was built by the Pepper estate of Philadelphia for the Y. M. C. A., and the cornerstone was laid by President Cleveland during his first administration. The building was of brick, five stories high, and extended 100 feet north on Locust street and half a block west on Ninth street. Because of its unsafe condition it was abandoned by the Y. M. C. A. ten years ago. Since then the first and second floors have been occupied by Montgomery Ward & Co., who used it as offices and employed 200 clerks, mostly girls. It contains two small auditoriums, one of which, that on the third floor, was used by the Kansas City Athenaeum, which was holding a session when the fire started, half a hundred prominent women being in attendance.

The third, fourth and fifth floors were occupied by artists and musicians, and some of the upper rooms were used as living apartments. Many of the studios were furnished elaborately and contained valuable musical instruments and works of art. There is but one elevator in the building, adjoining a stairway, the only means of exit.

Trapped inmates in panic. The fire started a few minutes before three o'clock in the basement, in a quantity of twine in the Montgomery Ward storeroom, close to the elevator. Ten minutes later the flames began shooting up the elevator shaft and all escape save by the fire escapes was shut off. The halls quickly filled with a dense, suffocating smoke, and when the first fire apparatus arrived on the scene people crowded almost every window, appealing for help, while scores of others, mostly women and girls, filled the fire escapes and were climbing wildly to the ground. In many of the studios pupils were taking lessons. The firemen were slow in getting to work, and the first ladders placed by them against the building failed to reach above the third floor.

Inside the wildest panic prevailed. When the alarm of fire was first sounded the women in the Athenaeum rooms considered that a joke was being perpetrated, and no effort was made to leave. A moment later, as the room filled with smoke, there was a wild scramble for the exits. After the first rush for the hallway, which had now become so filled with smoke that escape there was impossible, they were driven back to the windows facing Locust and Ninth streets. There was but one fire escape on this end of the building, that on the Locust street side. This was quickly filled with wildly excited women.

De Mare Killed by Leap. George De Mare, aged 32 years, art instructor in the Central high school, and a portrait painter who came to this country four years ago from Paris, jumped from his studio window on the fifth floor and was picked up dead. He recently married a prominent society woman. She was waiting in a near by drug store, where her husband's body was brought in, and fainted.

Miss Alexandra Blumberg, a Russian countess, who came to America two years ago and who had a studio on the fourth floor, was overcome by smoke and carried from her room by a fireman, who started down a ladder with her. When the two were within 30 feet of the ground the firemen below in their excitement turned a stream of water on them, knocking her from the ladder. Miss Blumberg was picked up unconscious, suffering from a fractured skull. She is seriously and perhaps fatally hurt. The fireman was painfully injured. Miss Blumberg was born in Russia and is a miniature painter of note, who came to Kansas City two years ago from Paris. Her studio contained many rare works of art, some paintings that had been exhibited in the salons of Europe. She saved nothing.

Carl Busch Has Close Call. Carl Busch, a noted composer and violinist, and his wife, who is a pianist well known in Europe, escaped after exciting experiences. Both lost all their musical instruments, which included two priceless Stradivarius violins and several manuscripts of operas written by Busch.

Mr. Busch helped to rescue several young girls from the building. At the time the fire broke out he was in the studio of Crosby Hopps, a vocal teacher, who was giving a lesson to Miss Edith Low, of Topeka, daughter of M. A. Low, general counsel for the Rock Island railway. After warning the other occupants of their floor, Busch and Hopps aided Miss Low and some other pupils to escape and then, being forced to leave themselves, crept on their hands and knees down the hallway, which was filled with smoke, to a fire escape.

Woman Slides Down Rod. There were many thrilling escapes. Miss Helen Barnes, who had a studio on the fifth floor, stood at a window calling for help while flames played within a few feet of her. A ladder put up toward the window failed to reach and a fireman stretched out an iron rod and urged her to climb down it. The woman slid down the rod to the ladder and was finally landed safely on the ground.

The total loss is estimated at $250,000, with insurance of perhaps $150,000. The building, which was sold some time ago by the Pepper estate to William A. Rule, of Kansas City, was valued at $175,000, and is a complete loss. The loss sustained by Montgomery Ward & Co. will not exceed $25,000.

PLEASURE FOR AN EVENING.

Novel Idea in the Way of a Church Entertainment.

Here is a novel idea for a church entertainment which requires little preparation. A rustic bridge was built out from the stage, inclosing a square space, that was used for a fish pond. Rocks and ferns were grouped along the edge of the stage, the floor was covered with green carpet, and a pretty meadow scene painted on coarse cotton was hung at the back of the stage, making a very picturesque setting for the pond, says the Cooking School Magazine. Steps led up to the bridge, and at the foot was a rustic lodge, where, on payment of a fee, the prospective fisher was given a pole and a circle of cardboard, upon which was marked the number of times he was entitled to fish. Thus equipped, he went up on the bridge and fished in the pond. Tickets were also sold by the bridge keepers. Refreshments were served, and there were candy and cake tables and two stalls where fancy articles were sold. One of these stalls bore the sign, "Fish Market." Here fish of many brilliant colors and quaint shapes were for sale; there were blotchers, shaving cases, pin cushions and sachet bags. On the cake table were many toothsome fishes—chocolate and clear candy fishes and boxes of candy decorated with water color and pen and ink sketches, also sandwiches cut out with fish-shaped tin cutters, also cookies and small iced cakes. At intervals singing and tableaux may be given for variety.

FAMOUS CANALS OF CHINA.

Holland's Waterways Outdone by the Celestial Empire.

Holland's canals are famous, but the canal system of China is far more marvelous and its value to the enormous empire is simply incalculable. No country in the world has more navigable rivers and canals than China. The network of waterways, natural and artificial, so covers the empire that almost as many people live upon the water as on the land. The Great canal, that wonder of the world, runs north and south from Canton to the extremity of the empire, and by this route the wares of all nations are carried to Peking, a distance of 825 miles. This canal is 50 feet wide; it passes through, or near, 41 large cities; it has 75 large sluices to keep up the water, and is spanned by thousands of bridges.

Advice.

Henry Clews gives this advice to boys: "Avoid the man who habitually drinks alone." It is good advice, and would be still better if the last word were omitted.—Kansas City Journal.

CARS MAKE A TRIP WITHOUT SHOOTING

SAN FRANCISCO POLICE GIVE EFFICIENT PROTECTION.

HOWLING MOBS KEPT OFF

Four Men Injured by Missiles and Officers' Clubs—Strike-Breakers Are Not Armed.

San Francisco, May 9.—The police, for the first time since the commencement of the street car strike, furnished actual protection Wednesday afternoon for two of the United railroads' cars, manned by 21 strike-breakers, and as a result of this protection these cars were run over six miles of track without the firing of a shot.

Four men, one of them a strike-breaker, the other three members of the Electrical Workers' union, were injured. There was intermittent hurling of missiles by union crowds at various points along the route, and for two or three miles a mob of at least 1,000 men and boys ran with the cars, yelling, calling epithets, daring the non-union men to get off the cars and fight, cheering vociferously whenever for any cause the cars were brought temporarily to a standstill.

Chief Dinan Leads Police.

About 29 police officers and patrolmen, led by Chief Dinan, some of them in automobiles, a number mounted on horses and other afoot, accompanied the cars. Assistant President Thornwell Mullalley, Superintendent Chapman and other officers of the United railroads, kept pace in automobiles with the cars.

The route selected was through the better class business and residence streets of the western addition and the Richmond districts. The start was made at three o'clock and the run was completed two hours later.

From the commencement to its finish the police displayed decision, energy and determination in dealing with the shouting, howling crowds. When necessity arose, they did not hesitate to draw their clubs and use them, and as a result a number of heads were bruised.

Strike-Breakers Not Armed.

The fact that cars were to be started from Oak and Broderick instead of from Turk and Fillmore streets did not become generally known until afternoon. A few minutes after two o'clock two covered wagons containing the 21 strike-breakers who were to man the cars, emerged into Turk street from the company's yards and were driven at a gallop to Oak and Broderick, mounted policemen escorting.

Capt. Gleason had instructions from Chief Dinan to board the cars with a detail of officers as soon as any disturbance was made and search the operatives for revolvers. He was to arrest and send to headquarters any of the strike-breakers whom he found armed. The instructions were conveyed to Assistant President Mullalley immediately after the arrival of the non-union men, and after a brief conference Mr. Mullalley gave his word that none of the car men would be armed. This promise was rigidly kept and there was no search by the police.

Second Death Occurs.

The second death as the result of Tuesday's street car riot occurred Wednesday afternoon when John Buchanan, a car shop employee, 21 years of age, died at the emergency hospital. He was shot through the abdomen. Two others, Albert C. Palm, a chauffeur, and Nathan Leiser, a 16-year-old boy, are not expected to live.

Bloody Fighting in Brooklyn.

New York, May 9.—Not since Brooklyn car riots has there been such street fighting on the other side of the river as happened Wednesday night when nearly 600 Italians and Poles joined battle in the Italian quarter near Metropolitan avenue, Williamsburg. Three patrolmen were seriously injured, and when their comrades had broken up the riot 35 rioters had been sent to the Williamsburg hospital, and 12 more locked up in a police station.

Under cover of darkness, an attempt was made by the steamship lines to run their new men through the strikers' pickets to their homes. When the strike-breakers were clear of the pier and it looked as though they were safely through the enemy's lines, every dark lurking place gave up two or three men armed with clubs and pistols, paving stones and guns. From the roofs there came a volley of chimney tops, stones and all sorts of old junk, which poured down on the heads of the frightened Italians. Forty mounted police put a stop to the riot.

All the Difference.

Attorney General Hadley of Missouri condemned in an address at Topeka before the State Bar association, certain trust methods. "I am sure," he said, "that we all want to see laws enacted that will give a square deal to everybody. We want, all over the world, as little as possible of that thing which is exemplified in the anecdote of the Syracuse widow. She lost every cent she possessed through the speculations of some dishonest bank officials. In discussing the matter with her, a minister said, soothingly: 'The thieves will be punished, maybe. They're committed for trial.' 'Yes,' said the widow, 'they're committed for trial; it is true; and my child and I are condemned to hard labor for life.'"

Pontiac, Great Organizer.

Pontiac exemplified at once the best and the worst traits of the American Indian. As an organizer among a people with whom organization is almost impossible, and as a master of the treacherous statecraft of his race, he probably surpassed them all. As soon as his death was known, the French governor at St. Louis sent for his body and buried it with full martial honors near the fort. "For a mausoleum," Parkman finely says, "a great city has arisen above the forest hero; and the race whom he hated with such burning rancor, trample with unceasing footsteps over his forgotten grave."—Outing Magazine.

Melon as Fish Bait.

It seems that the melon is a dainty much appreciated by fish, and in high favor as a bait among German anglers. The method of procedure is as follows: A hole is cut at the end farthest from the stem, the seeds are extracted and a part of the fruit hollowed out a number of hooks attached to a line threaded through the stem are buried in the flesh of the melon, which is then sent adrift, being buoyed on the surface by two pieces of wood and furnished with a line, by which it can be drawn ashore when the bobbing of the bait shows that a fish has been hooked.

Not Labor Lost.

The safe bore a paper stating that there was nothing of value within. Nevertheless, the burglar blew the receptacle open, finding the statement correct. "Well," he remarked, gathering up his tools, "it's worth something to ascertain that there are still people who tell the truth."

The Actress Lady.

"Polly Pinktoes, the soubrette, celebrated her silver wedding yesterday." "Nonsense! She's not old enough to have been married 25 years." "Certainly not; but she was married for the twenty-fifth time yesterday."

New York's "Picture Lane."

Fifth avenue, New York, is sometimes spoken of in art circles as "picture lane," because of the numerous dealers' galleries there or in the side streets just off the avenue. Art, however, is not limited to any one of the city's thoroughfares. Fourth avenue has its share of galleries, and they also are to be found west of Fifth avenue and uptown.
